

RESPONSE TO BARRY

C.H. Patterson

Barry's comments are essentially a rhetorical listing of his disagreements with me. For me to respond to each of them would be to reiterate my position. He asks for evidence for my statements, but presents none for his own. My evidence is based on 55 years of study, practice, research, writing, and teaching in the field of psychotherapy. It is presented in a book (co-authored by Suzanne Freeman and to be titled Psychotherapy: A Universal System) that is nearing completion. I will leave it to history to judge the issues.

Policy Statement

The Person-Centered Journal is sponsored by the Association for Development of the Person-Centered Approach (ADPCA). The publication is intended to promote and disseminate scholarly thinking about person-centered principles, practices, and philosophy.

All materials contained in The Person-Centered Journal are the property of the ADPCA, which grants reproduction permission to libraries, researchers, and teachers to copy all or part of the materials in this issue for scholarly purposes with the stipulation that no fee for profit be charged to the consumer for the use or possession of such copies.