

"What you are to be, you are now becoming."

- Carl Rogers

The ADPCA Conference is a unique way to experience and learn about the Person-Centered Approach and Client-Centered Therapy. The experiential side of the conference combines daily large community meetings (encounter groups) and regular small groups, both being a central part of the conference. The academic quality is also very present and consists of person-centered practitioners, trainers and students from different cultural and professional backgrounds sharing workshops, presentations, discussion groups and/or practical demonstration sessions. At the conference, we also have ADPCA Business Meetings where matters related to the Association are openly addressed, discussed and decided in a democratic way. ADPCA does not have a hierarchical structure, so all members have the right to share their views and equally have a say in the decision making process and non-members participating in the conference are also welcome to join these meetings.

Kutztown University is an extraordinary gem. The campus is nestled in the rural, rolling hills of Pennsylvania Dutch country. Located half-way between Allentown and Reading, the university is just three hours from Baltimore, two hours from New York, and 1-1/2 hours from Philadelphia.
